CARDINALS PLAYING AT ALBANY PICNIC

Backers of Nine Declare They Will Have to Have More Support to Hold New Players Signed.

Support for the Janesville Cardinals, which has been the subject of much discussion since the team was organized, was declared this morning that to increase the strength of the nine with new players intended to bolster up the infield and batting strength.

Several of the Janesville players, including Butters and Cornell, have received higher offers with the White-water nine and as a consequence the team was raised higher by the Cardinal manager to hold them here.

Today the Cardinals meet the Albany team at the picnic at Albany and despite their crippled condition because several of the regulars will not be in the lineup, the Cardinals expect a victory. Against them, Pettigrew, a former St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, will do the twirling backed by a good holding nine. Butters will do part of the pitching with Chamberlain relieving him, to save Butters for the Sunday game with Rock Island. Hall will not be behind the bat and either Peterson or Calkins, of Delavan, will do the receiving. The infield will be made up of Miller at third, Crook at short, Cornell at second, and Neher at first. Miller has signed to play the remainder of the season and the Cardinals are offering made by White-water for his services. Crook's home is in Albany and he expects to show the "home folks" the result of his diamond education with the Cardinals. The Albany kid is playing like a streak so far this year and is considered the strongest chump in the infield. Miller should hold the infield with a rock and key Neher, who is showing great at first, although it is a position comparatively new to him. He has speed to cover the sack and his fielding has been first class. The Rock Island team come here Sunday heralded as being one of the strongest "home-grown" nines in the section, having many stars from Chicago nines in their squad. Butters will be fitted for this game and with Hall behind the bat should be able to give the Illinois squad a merry race for honors.

The Sunday following, the Cardinals cross bats with the Rockford Maroons, said to be the best nine in the Portage City with the exception of the league's best. July 3, Manager Caldwell is negotiating to play Monroe at Monroe and the same team in a return game here on the Fourth, which will be Sunday. This will allow for another game on Monday, the fifth.

JOHNSON SHOWS OLD SPEED AND GRIFFS BEAT SOX 5 TO 2

Washington, June 17.—Walter Johnson showed his old time form yesterday and as a result the White Sox were humbled, the count being 5 to 2. Washington was master all the route, for the great Walter started on his stride and the Chicago nine could not hit his cannon drives for but four hits. Schalk hit two fluky singles and Weaver and Fournier were the only ones to obtain real hits. Johnson was opposed by Rob Rusk and was touched for eleven hits, and defense work by the Sox allowed the Senators to get a flying start in the first, when they counted two runs. The Sox got one in the second when Fournier singled, went to second when Johnson hit J. Collins and Seale put through an infield single. Russell suppressed the Senators well until the eighth, when they lammed out two more runs. From the fifth inning on the Sox got just one man as far as first base.

Braves' Rally Wins.
Chicago, June 17.—The Chicago Cubs were unable to follow Mayor Thompson's lead in breaking up the tie-up in the National League, for the Boston Braves with a lot of horse shoes defeated the Bruins by a score of 4 to 3. At times it looked as if the diamond argument would last all night.

A cluster of four hits and a base on balls in the fifth inning brought victory to the champs. The rally also was the Larry Cheney of the mound. Tyler, on the mound for the Braves, was wild and hit so hard that the Cubs had men on bases every inning with the exception of the seventh. Three Cub runners were cut off at the plate by snappy mariners, and brilliant double play by Maranville staved off two runs. Both teams "crabbed" considerably during the game and several were dusted off the bench before finished the game for the Cubs.

MORRIS MILLER

Ability to hit the ball is not the sole winning factor in the game. The Glants have five 300 batsmen and the Reds have three—the only club that have more than two regulars over this mark—yet the Glants and Reds have been struggling in the place all the year. The Glants have the best club batting average of either league—but the standing of the clubs shows what hard hitting is worth when a pitching staff is able to protect four or five runs.

Ty Cobb, the Detroit star, is absolute master of both his brain and brawn. He directs both in perfect team play without any waste. We have never seen any athlete who carried so much muscular control. There are a number of athletes who can think quickly, but who are unable to make their muscular system respond. Cobb has succeeded in mastering his mental and physical make-up to a wonderful degree.

Creed Hammond, the University of Utah sprinter, who has been a sensation in the Rocky mountain district this spring with his 4.5 seconds for the 100 and 21.5 seconds for the 400, may enter the University of Chicago next fall. He is said to have announced this intention. O. K. Karry, the captain of the University of Utah track team, who has a record of 6 feet in the high jump will also go to Chicago University. University of Utah coach is the famous Chicago all-around star, Nelson H. Norgren.

Al Reich still insists he's going to force himself into a fight with Jess Willard some way or other, although he has been told that the champion route for Kansas City the other day. Reich stopped off at Chicago and gave Windy City fans a chance to admire his pugilistic prowess by putting on a three round exhibition with a local heavyweight.

Harry Harper bids fair to break all strikeout records in the American Association this season. In thirteen games the young twirler turned over to the Minneapolis Millers by Clarke Griffith has fanned 108 batters, an average of almost nine men a game. He has walked 73 batters and allowed only 56 hits, an average of just a little more than four per game. Yet Harper is charged with seven defeats and only four victories.

When Charley Somers gets ready to appoint a permanent manager for his Indians it is likely to be Jack Hendricks, who now is at the head of the Indianapolis team of the American Association. Hendricks has been one of the most successful minor league managers the game has ever produced, and he is picked to be a success in the major leagues when he breaks into Cleveland. Hendricks has previously had one or two chances to manage major league clubs, but at that time had interests in the minors which he could not afford to give up. But now he is anxious to get a chance in fast company and he will not turn down Somers' offer, though he would like to finish the season at Indianapolis.

J. B. Sheridan of St. Louis, a veteran sport writer, pays one of the finest tributes that could possibly be handed out to a writer, to Grover Cleveland Alexander for the Nebraska's near no-hit game against the Cardinals recently. He says of Alexander: "It was great pitching. Alexander had everything. In twenty-one seasons' observation I have not seen a pitcher greater than Alexander was yesterday. His fast ball was like forked lightning. His curve ball had the sharpest and quickest break I have ever seen. Also, it was the fastest curve ball I have ever looked at. He had a spitball that fairly ducked under the bats. His control was perfect. He could do anything with any ball. Side arm, overhand, underhand, slow, ten vari-

Armando Marsans.

Armando Marsans, the fleet Cuban outfielder, gets a salary of $42 a day for doing just about nothing, but is dissatisfied. When he attempted to jump from the Cincinnati Nationals to the St. Louis Feds a court injunction was secured, and this has since kept him from playing. "But I hate loafing," says Armando. "It makes me sick because I can't play."

GAMENESS MADE DAUBERT STAR; SENT OFTEN TO MINORS, WOULDN'T GIVE UP

Jake Daubert.

There is a lesson for all young men in the career of Jake Daubert, member of the Brooklyn ball team and premier first baseman of the country. It is a lesson in confidence in one's own ability and determination to win despite all obstacles. Jake was sent to the minors four times, but his courage was never broken, and today he is looked upon by the baseball world as one of the ablest players in the game.

ous deliveries, sometimes a short snap, again a long swing. I have seen Rustie, Johnson, Meekin, Waddell and all the others, including Dineen and Young, but there never was such a variety of stuff as Alexander displayed here."

Joe Cantillon, manager of the Millers and Tom Chivington, president of the American Association, were discussing the probability of war the other night, when Joe said: "Well, if this country goes to war we'll have no baseball for a while, and I think I'll recruit a regiment of the high-salaried players and lead them to the front, where they will all be shot, then maybe we can make some money. Of course, we'd have to draft them."

THE GOOD JUDGE HEARS OF CONVERTS

MEN line up for the Real Tobacco Chew because it's what they've been wanting right along whether they knew it or not.

And the ones who saw it first like to get together and watch the movement grow. That's why so much is heard about it.

A little chew of pure, rich, mellow tobacco—seasoned and sweetened just enough—cuts out so much of the grinding and spitting.

THE REAL TOBACCO CHEW IS NOW CUT TWO WAYS!! W-B CUT IS LONG SHRED. RIGHT-CUT IS SHORT SHRED.

Take less than one-quarter the old size chew. It will be more satisfying than a mouthful of ordinary tobacco. Just take a nibble of it until you find the strength chew that suits you, then see how easily and evenly the real tobacco taste comes, how it satisfies, how much less you have to spit, how few chews you take to be tobacco satisfied. That's why it is The Real Tobacco Chew. That's why it costs less in the end.

The taste of pure, rich tobacco, does not need to be covered up. An excess of licorice and sweetening makes you spit too much.

One small chew takes the place of two big chews of the old kind.

(Notice how the salt brings out the rich tobacco taste.)

NO ONE-PIECE BATHING SUITS IN VENICE, CALIF.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Venice, Cal., June 17.—Sparsely clad bathers are not permitted this year to rove the strand as of yore. The official ban has been placed upon surf attire likely to bring blushes to the shocked faces of the modest minority.

To enforce the town's strict regulations against one-piece swimming suits a board of censors, composed of women, has been formed. When the bathing hour rolls around these ladies meet in a room near the strand. Should a boy or girl appear on the beach in draperies which the life guard police deem too peek-a-boo, the offender would instantly be clothed in a bathrobe and hailed before the censors.

Then the robe is snatched away, the bather stands revealed in all his or her, Adam or Eve like beauty, and the board trains a battery of long-rettes on the spectacle and passes judgment. If the suit is deemed too scanty the ukase is uttered, "Go and put on some clothes," and the incident closed. But woe betide the culprit if the offense is repeated.

A $500,000 Gift To Users of Fortified Tires

Here's an actual gift. Nobody asked for better tires than Goodyear built last year. They were so extra-goods that for years these tires have outlasted any other.

But we found new improvements. This year we add them at an extra cost of $500,000 for the year.

$5,000,000 Less
Yet this year—on February 1st—we made another big price reduction. On this year's probable output it will save Goodyear users some $5,000,000. And that was our third reduction in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

Tires Not Alike
Tires are not alike.

Goodyear Fortified Tires have five great features which no other maker uses. Each combats a major trouble. Together they save millions to our users.

They have other features not commonly employed, and each means extra wear.

If we omitted all these extras, we could save this year on our probable output $1,635,000, and pocket that extra profit.

We give you these extras at the Goodyear price through our matchless output. It is due to yourself that you get them. Any dealer, if you ask him, will supply you Goodyear tires.

A PARTING SHOT.

The Wall Street Journal can not forbear to take a parting shot at the fast vanishing national figure of the former secretary of state. It says in cold, hard type:

"William Jennings Bryan in public office was a public fraud.
"The primary purpose of all government is defence. To this end government divided into branches of legislation, adjudication and execution. But after legislation comes execution."

"The first defence of a nation is its diplomacy, the interchange of settlements and views between nations that misunderstandings may be avoided."

"Holding the principles which he has now confessed as applicable to intercourse between nations—love without force—Mr. Bryan had no moral right to accept office in any executive branch of the government and certainly not the head office in the government's outpost of defence."

"Everybody may know that love is the greatest thing in the world, that it is above all things and the source of all things, and universal love the aim of all things. But when Mr. Bryan attempts to set up international love for international law as a defence of American citizens and their rights upon the high seas he is in public executive office, not as a public official, the right to principles and practices of non-resistance to evil. Even the Lord Christ did not invite the crucifixion of his disciples."

"Mr. Bryan entered the national view with the declaration, 'Thou shalt not press down this crown of thorns.' He leaves the public service pressing down upon his own brow the stigma of fraud in public office."

"Charles W. Eliot, the most distinguished educator in the United States, one of its clearest thinkers upon the rights, duties and responsibilities of man, a master of English expression, and a leading director of the Carnegie Peace Foundation, avows echoes of vindictous and repeated applause when, speaking Thursday in the highest building on the top of Beacon Hill in Boston, before its Chamber of Commerce and a delegation from China, he said:

"No people, no matter how numerous, can maintain an independent existence as a nation unless they maintain a national force."

"I could apply this observation to a country nearer than China."

"Our President Wilson is a scholar, an educator, an advancing statesman, and although in general not as clear a thinker or speaker as President Eliot, he has given to Germany a third note of which every American citizen may feel proud. It is a masterpiece in diplomacy—international politeness—in logical thought and clear expression. Above all, it is a note for the peace of humanity."

"It does not contemplate war and it does not run away from it."

"It does not recede a single inch in its demand that the rights of American citizens on the high seas be respected by nations at war, and it demands it from every standpoint—from contract treaty obligations and human rights."

"President Wilson's position is impregnable. His expression of it up to date leaves nothing to be desired—nothing to be desired by either advocates of war or of peace."

BELGIUM'S REPLY.

While Belgium is a devastated country, while its fields are in ruins, its villages wrecked, its population scattered and harassed and what is left of its brave little army fighting in the trenches with the English and French down in one corner of the kingdom led by their king, they rise with much dignity and reply to Germany's explanation of the alleged destruction of life by wanton slaughter in the first days of the war. According to the New York World-Globe the reply is dignified, and when they say that when Germany devastated Belgium she explained in a White Book that many of the townspeople had resisted and so, being more civilians, had brought upon their own heads all the horrors that befell them. The Belgian government itself Germany accused of including its non-combatant citizens to resist the invader by private means.

To these charges Belgium replies by a simple statement of facts. At the beginning of the war the government sent out a warning, published in the newspapers and posted in public places, that only regular soldiers were permitted to attack the invader, and in many communities privately owned weapons were collected, so as to remove all temptation, of official documents, newspaper files, and stores of fowling pieces and revolvers, proving conclusively that no organized "franco-tireurs" war did exist or could exist.

It is unfortunate for Germany's cause that her defense of deeds that have been most severely condemned seems never to rest on a secure foundation of ascertainable truth, but always on vague allegations or theories constructed after the fact. Her invasion of Belgium was justified first by military necessity, then by discovery of a prior trespass by France, and last by the "secret" plans of a British military attaché in Antwerp to use Belgium as a military base. So the Lusitania massacre was justified by the timely report that she was an armed vessel. Before the world military Germany stands accused of some of the cruelest crimes in the history of the world. The best done in Belgium the traditions of the mark are furnish few parallels. Better for her would have been silence than excuses that cannot be accepted by the civilized world.

DECIDED PROOF.

One of the greatest evidences that advertising is the right kind of business can be found in the gathering in Chicago of ten thousand advertising men from all parts of the country from the 20th to the 24th in a mammoth convention. "These are the men who make 'business history' by writing the news of business. They meet to discuss ways and means of making advertising better and more efficient to the advertiser and also to the public who read the advertisement. It is a high tribute to the profession of advertising that its members are eager for self-betterment. The real, genuine builders of business are the men who make 'truths' their watchword and better service their constant desire."

GOLF.

Leslie's Weekly defends golf as a means of developing the thoughts and ideas of men subjected to severe brain work. It says:

"In the dark days of the war between the States when sectional feeling was as intense as that which exists now between the belligerents in Europe, President Lincoln was vilified for telling an occasional humorous story to a visitor. In an explanation to a friend he said, with tears in his eyes, 'If I could not divert my mind in some way from the awful responsibilities that rest upon me, I would break down.' Those critics of President Wilson's action in playing golf at the time of the Lusitania disaster have nothing to be proud of. Few realize the burdens of the chief magistrate. It is the part of wisdom for him, and essential to his well being, that he should break away from the oppressive cares of office as often as possible and seek recreation in the open air. Let the president play golf as often as he can snatch a spare hour or two from the accumulating duties of the day."

Carranza and Villa still keep up a long distance stenographic warfare when not actually fighting. Meanwhile the citizens of the republic they are both seeking to save, are starving to death by slow degrees.

Chicago is again enjoying a period of rest hanging onto straps in the crowded surface and elevated trains after several days of enforced enjoyment of nature in the jitneys.

"Doc" Dernberg has gone back home. "Doc" Cook is still discredited and "Doc" Bryan is being placed in the class as the others by some of his former compatriots.

On learning that Roosevelt has approved of the second note to Germany the president may recall it until he has more time to carefully re-read it.

With Roosevelt, Bryan and Mount Lassen still "performing" the number of eruptions are most dangerous in this glorious country of ours.

It looks as though that water power bill was doomed to utter defeat by the legislature and that the work of the lobby was successful in the final vote.

With all this "favorite son" talk for the next presidential campaign, Ohio has not uttered a peep as to its "favorite son."

We hear so much about the sweet girl graduate, but why never mention the tart boy graduate?

Evidently the bicycle has come back with both wheels on the ground at the same time.

Do Your Children Brush Their Teeth Night and Morning?

If not, you are neglecting them and your duty and preparing sorrow for them. Teach your children about health.

A clean tooth does not decay. If you teach your children from the beginning to brush their teeth every morning and every night you will save them trouble and suffering and increase their efficiency throughout their whole lives.

Bad teeth cause sickness, chronic dyspepsia. They lead to other diseases.

They cause suffering, they are unsightly. They interfere with a girl's chances of marrying well.

GRADUATION PROGRAM BY SENIORS TONIGHT

LAST OF COMMENCEMENT WEEK EXERCISES WILL BE HELD AT HIGH SCHOOL BUILDING.

SEVENTY-SEVEN FINISH

President Buckmaster, of Board of Education Will Present Diplomas—Fine Program Arranged.

Tonight the Janesville high school will graduate the largest class that has ever finished that institution in one year. Tonight, the class of nineteen hundred fifteen will close its commencement exercises, which on the whole have rivaled the splendid exercises given in past years, when the class play was in existence.

E. Irene Lewis, Class Song.

Seventy-seven seniors, forty-three girls and thirty-four boys, will face the audience tonight and listen to the presentation of diplomas by Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, president of the Board of Education, after which each will receive his or her diploma of graduation.

Rev. T. D. Williams, of the Cargill Memorial Episcopal church will deliver the senior address. Several of the senior students will deliver short essays, with illustrations, and a demonstration of the presentation of the beautiful clock, as a token to the school from the outgoing class will be made by Harold James Stickney. This will be followed by the valedictory address by Pearl Rosina Gaarder, who has attained the remarkable high average of 96.77 in her four years of study at the school. The class song will close the program. The exercises are arranged for the closing exercises tonight is as follows:

Invocation—Miss E. Irene Lewis, "See America First," Roland Scholnick, "Demonstration of Oxygen and Its Uses," Fred Wolf.

"Demonstration of Light and Voltage Electricity," Marvin Lyman Dudley and O. Joseph Franklin. "Illustrated Talk on an Economical Plan," Lucile Hutchinson. "Presentation of Class Song," Katherine Elizabeth Sheridan.

Valedictory Address—Pearl Rosina Gaarder. Presentation of Diplomas—Dr. S. B. Buckmaster. Rendition of Class Song—Senior Class Students. Written by E. Irene Lewis and Katherine Elizabeth Sheridan.

It is no guesswork to state that the largest crowd that ever attended a pageant in this city was in attendance at the presentation of diplomas yesterday afternoon. The opinion of many was that over five thousand witnessed the spectacle.

The procession march was struck up at four-thirty. Just after five o'clock the band led by Fred Wolf sounded the bugle call. One hundred and fifty took part in this march, after which the order of exercises was as follows:

Invocation—Miss E. Irene Lewis, "See America First," Roland Scholnick, "Demonstration of Oxygen and Its Uses," Fred Wolf. "Demonstration of Light and Voltage Electricity," Marvin Lyman Dudley and O. Joseph Franklin. "Illustrated Talk on an Economical Plan," Lucile Hutchinson. "Presentation of Class Song," Katherine Elizabeth Sheridan.

Miss Marjorie Merrill, who furnished all the music at the piano, deserves special mention for the faithful work she showed during the past week. Thanks are also due Miss Alice Abell, director, and the manual training department, for constructing the little play stage in the spectacle.

Miss Abell stated that the presentation of diplomas is the last pageant she will handle in this city as she leaves the local high school to accept a more lucrative position.

LADIES ARE FREE

We should see more of them at the baseball game Sunday afternoon.

NEWSBOY TRAMP MAKING HIS BOW TO JANSVILLE

"Keystone" Sam H. J. Cole, who hails originally from Hagerstown, Md., and says he is enroute from Nowhere to Nowhere, but hopes to land up at the Frisco exposition before snow flies, made his initial bow to Janesville this morning, having arrived when the conductor was looking for some train from Fond du Lac. He was born in 1890 and has been on the road since 1898. A scrap book shows he has traveled extensively, south, north, east and west, and quite recently in Wisconsin. Sometimes he has a companion who is somewhat afflicted with the "wanderlust," and recently he betook upon himself a wife, whom he states is staying in Oakbrook, "Gosh," for the present. Later he is going to Madison to tell the governor how to run affairs and give the legislature the advice which his long travels place him in a position to do.

Licenses issued: The following have been issued marriage licenses: Jesse B. Fallon and Etta E. Flint, both of Beloit; Charles W. Van Schick of Waterloo and Eva Pearl Rasmussen of Milton Junction; Paul J. Riese of Footville and Sarah Hammel of Orfordville.

Boost for baseball next Sunday.

LOCAL TEAM 71 DOWN IN MORRIS CUP PLAY

Janesville Players Able To Better Records Made by Chicago Clubs in Cup Competition.

Mississippi club golfers playing yesterday for the Tom Morris Memorial trophy established a record one point below that of any Chicago club. While the local players do not expect to carry off the cup this year they are fully satisfied with the count they made.

From records received after the play it looks as if the cup will be awarded to the Highlands golf club of Grand Rapids, Mich., which turned in a total of 11 down to par.

The Janesville players' record was 71 down, one point better than that of the Jackson Park club of Chicago. Wet and soggy courses in the Windy City yesterday handicapped players to a great extent.

In the play yesterday the local golfers scored as follows: Al Schaller, 6; Burr Brewer, 5; Fred Schaller, 4; E. B. Baker, 3; H. H. Bliss, 15; F. S. Barnes, 11 and Fred Baker 7 down, a total of 71 down.

EIGHTEEN GRADUATED AT TRAINING SCHOOL

DIPLOMAS ARE PRESENTED THIS MORNING AT EXERCISES BY O. D. ANTISDEL.

MONROE MAN SPEAKS

Principal of Green County Training School In Able Commencement Address—Banquet in Afternoon.

The fourth annual commencement exercises of the Green County Training school were held this morning at 10 o'clock at the Christ church guild hall, when eighteen seniors received diplomas after the completion of their work under Miss Mary J. Lowth and her assistant, Miss L. J. Gower.

The presentation of the diplomas was made by Superintendent O. D. Antisdel, secretary of the training school board, the following being graduated from the institution:

Clayde M. Anderson, Alice A. Garmon, Hazel M. Doyle, Helen J. Flint, Mary A. Hodge, Florence E. Home, Agnes Malone, Isabelle M. Marshall, Evelyn L. Merlet, Martha B. Norman, Maxine E. Williams and Hazel L. Gower.

Commencement Address. Principal C. H. Dietz of the Green County Training school, in a very impressive commencement address on "The Spirit of the Younger Generation," he referred more discreetly to the local youth of Janesville than he did to the graduates of the school.

"The question is, what is the spirit of the younger generation? The answer is, what is the spirit of the younger generation? The answer is, what is the spirit of the younger generation?"

TWO SEINERS FINED FOR GAME OFFENSE

Bradford Men Pay Twenty-Five Dollars and Costs in Court for Seining in Turtle Creek.

Game Wardens W. P. Mason and W. P. Elliott brought Carl Fehr and Edward Soderquest, residents of the town of Bradford, into the municipal court on charges of violating the state game laws in seining with a net over twenty feet in length in Turtle Creek yesterday.

Three drunks were arraigned in the court this morning. Walter N. Walrath drew the limit on the charge of being drunk and disorderly, being sentenced to ten days flat in the city jail.

Albert Arnsen, a farm employee, went to the justice bar with a grin on his face. He admitted being drunk with a smile and confessed with a chuckle that he was a "first class" drunk.

Otto Blumrich, first pleaded not guilty to the drunkenness charge, but on being led back to the "bull pen" he was charged with a change of mind and asked to be allowed to change his plea to guilty.

He was fined five dollars and costs which was paid.

ONE HUNDRED TWELVE RURAL PUPILS FINISH

SUPT. ANTISDEL PRESENTS DIPLOMAS TO RURAL COUNTY STUDENTS—COUNTY SPELLING CONTEST.

A LARGE ATTENDANCE

Graduates May Enter Any High School in Rock County Next Fall.—Prof. Mortimer In Address.

At the annual county school graduation exercises held this afternoon at the high school assembly room in this city, one hundred and twelve rural county students from all over Rock county were presented diplomas that entitles them to enter any high school in the county next fall.

Supt. Antisdel opened the meeting at two-fifteen o'clock, with a short address of welcome, when J. A. Craig of the Janesville Machine company offered a few appropriate remarks on lines of education.

A county spelling contest for those who won first and second places in the town contests was held after the discourse by Mr. Craig. The contestants wrote on paper, the words being pronounced by Principal F. J. Lowth.

A piano duet was next furnished by the Misses Marie Dobson and Lucine Jones, and was enjoyed immensely.

A short address by Prof. George B. Mortimer of the Wisconsin university, agricultural department, was both interesting and instructive.

Prof. Mortimer spoke along educational lines, giving the youthful graduates right advice. He also spoke to the older graduates on topics of interest pertaining to the farm and city.

MEASURES THE SUN'S HEAT BY EXPERIMENT

Enough Heat From the Sun Is Received On Earth by Square Yard to Heat Pound of Water Boiling in 2 1/2 Min. (By Associated Press.)

Boston, Mass., June 17.—Progress in the work of exact determination of the amount of heat received by the earth from the sun has been the object of experiments recently conducted by Messrs. C. G. Abbott, E. E. Powell and L. B. Aldrich of the Institution at Washington.

The heat which is received at the earth's surface is somewhat less than this, namely by the variable amount that is absorbed by the earth's atmosphere.

The remarkable discovery has been made that the heat received from the sun is not constant, but variable from month to month or year to year by perhaps as much as 10 per cent.

The variation in the heat received from the sun is not constant, but variable from month to month or year to year by perhaps as much as 10 per cent.

"Which is to say that you haven't yet found your other self, isn't it? Perhaps that will come, too, if you'll only be patient—and not expect too many other gifts of the gods along with the one priceless gift of perfect sympathy."

"When I find the one priceless gift, I shall confidently expect to find everything else," he asserted, still held a willing prisoner by the bewitching eyes.

She laughed softly. "You'll be disappointed. The gift you demand will preclude some of the others; as the others would certainly preclude it. How can you be an author and not understand that?"

"I am not an author, I am sorry to say," he objected. "I have written but the one book, and I have never been able to find a publisher for it."

"But you are not going to give up?" "No, I am going to rewrite the book and try again—and yet again, if needful. It is my message to mankind, and I mean to deliver it."

"Bravo!" she applauded, clapping her hands in a little burst of enthusiasm, which, if it were not real, was at least an excellent simulation. "It is only the weak ones who say, 'I hope.' For the truly strong hearts there is only one battle cry, 'I will!'"

When you get blue and discouraged you must come to me and let me cheer you. Cheering people is my mission, if I have any."

Griswold's pale face flushed and the blood sang blithely in his veins. He wondered if she had been tempted to read the manuscript of the book while he was fighting his way back to consciousness and life. If they had been alone together, he would have asked her. The bare possibility set all the springs of the author's vanity bubbling within him. There and then he promised himself that she should hear the rewriting of the book, chapter by chapter. But what he said was out of a deeper and worthier undertone.

"You have many missions, Miss Margery; some of them you choose, and some are chosen for you."

"No," she denied; "nobody has ever chosen for me."

"That may be true, without making me a false prophet. Sometimes when we think we are choosing for ourselves, chance chooses for us; oftener than not, I believe."

She turned on him quickly, and for a single swiftly passing instant the velvet eyes were deep wells of sobriety with an indefinable underdepth of sorrow in them. Griswold had a sudden conviction that for the first time in his knowing of her he was looking into the soul of the real Margery Grierson.

"What you call 'chance' may possibly have a bigger and better name," she said gravely.

Some little time after this Raymer, who had been one of the men introduced by Jasper Grierson, turned up again in the invalid's corner. Raymer suggested the smoking-room and a cigar, and Griswold went willingly.

From that on the path to better acquaintance was the easiest of short cuts, even as the mild cigar which Raymer found in his pocket case paved the way for a return of the smoker's zest in the convalescent. Without calling himself a reformer, the young ironmaster proved to be a practical sociologist. Wherefore, when Griswold presently mounted his own sociological hobby, he was promptly invited to visit the Raymer foundry and machine works, to the end that he might have some of his theories of the universal oppression of wage earners charitably modified.

"Of course, I don't deny that we're a long way from the millennium yet," was Raymer's summing up of the conditions in his own plant. "But I do claim that we are on a present-day, living footing. So far as the men understand loyalty, they are loyal; partly to my father's memory; partly, I hope, to me. We have never had a strike or an approach to one, or a disagreement that could not be adjusted amicably. Whether these conditions can be maintained after we double our capacity and get in a lot of new blood, I can't say. But I hope they can."

"You are enlarging!" said Griswold. Raymer waited until the only other man in the smoking den had gone back to the drawing-rooms before he said: "Yes; I caught the fever along with the rest of them a few weeks ago, and I'm already beginning to wish that I hadn't."

"You are afraid of the market?" "No; times are good, and the market—our market, at least—is daily growing stronger. It is rather a matter of finances. I am an engineer, as my father was before me. When it comes to wrestling with the money devil, I'm outclassed from the start."

"There are a good many more of us in the same boat," said Griswold, leaving an opening for further confidences if Raymer chose to make them. But the young ironmaster was looking at his watch, and the confidences were postponed.

"I'm keeping you up, when I dare say you ought to be in bed," he protested; but Griswold held him long enough to ask for a suggestion in a small matter of his own.

Now that he was able to be about, he was most anxious to relieve Miss Grierson and her father of the charge and care of one whose obligation to them was already more than mountain-high; did Raymer happen to know of some quiet household where the obligated one could find lodging and a simple table?

Raymer, taking time to think of it, did know. Mrs. Holcomb, the widow of his father's bookkeeper, owned her own house in Shawnee street. It was not a boarding house. The widow rented rooms to two of Mr. Grierson's bank clerks, and she was looking for another desirable lodger. Quite possibly she would be willing to board the extra lodger. Raymer himself would go and see her about it.

"It is an exceedingly kind-hearted community, this home town of yours, Mr. Raymer," was the convalescent's leave-taking, when he shook hands with the ironmaster at the foot of the stairs; and that was the thought which he took to bed with him after Raymer had gone to make his adieu to the small person who, in Griswold's reckoning, owned the kindest of kind hearts.

CHAPTER XIV.

Broffin's Equation.

Having Clerk Maurice's telegram to time the overtaking approach, Broffin found the Belle Julie backing and filling for her berth at the Vicksburg landing when, after a hasty Vicksburg breakfast, he had himself driven to the river front.

Going aboard as soon as the swing stage was lowered, he found Maurice, with whom he had something more than a speaking acquaintance, just turning out of his bunk in the Texas.

"I took it for granted you'd be along," was Maurice's greeting. "What bank robber are we running away with now?"

Broffin grinned.

"I'm still after the one you took on in the place of John Gavitt."

"Humph!" said the clerk, sleepily. "I thought that one was John Gavitt."

"No, he merely took Gavitt's place and name. Tell me all you know about him."

"I don't know anything about him, except that he was fool enough to pull Buck McGrath out of the river just after McGrath had tried to bump him over the bows."

"Of course, so far as you know, nobody on the boat suspected that the fellow who called himself Gavitt was anything but the 'roustie' he was passing himself off for? You didn't know of his having any talk with any of the upper-deck people?"

"Only once," said the day clerk, promptly.

"When was that?"

"It was one day just after the 'man-overboard' incident, a little while after dusk in the evening. I was up here in the Texas, getting ready to go to supper. Gavitt—we may as well keep on calling him that till you've found another name for him—Gavitt had been cubbing for the pilot. I saw him go across the hurricane-deck guards; and a minute later I heard him talking to somebody—a woman—on the guards below."

"You didn't hear what was said?"

"I didn't pay any attention. Passengers, woman passengers, especially, often do that—pull up a 'roustie' and pry into him to see what sort of wheels he has. But I noticed that they talked for quite a little while; because, when I finished dressing and went below, he was just leaving her."

Broffin rose up from the bunk on which he had been sitting and laid a heavy hand on Maurice's shoulder. "You ain't going to tell me that you didn't find out who the woman was, Clarence—what?" he said anxiously.

"That's just what I've got to tell you, Matt," returned the clerk, reluctantly. "It was due at the second table, and I didn't go as far forward as the stanchion she was holding to. All I can tell you is that she was one of the half-dozen or so younger women we had on board; I could guess at that much."

Broffin's oath was not of anger; it was a mere upbubbling of disappointment.

"Maurice, I've got to find that young woman if I have to chase her half-way round the globe, and it's tough luck to figure out that if you hadn't been in such a blazing hurry to get your supper that night, I might be able to catch up with her in the next forty-eight hours or so. But what's done is done, and can't be helped. Chase out and get your passenger list for that trip. We'll take the women as they come, and when you've helped me cull out the names of the ones you're sure it wasn't, I'll screw my nut and quit buzzing you."

The clerk went below and returned almost immediately with the list. Together they went over it carefully, and by dint of much memory-wringing Maurice was able to give the detective leave to cancel ten of the 17 names in the women's list, the remaining seven including all the might-have-beens who could possibly be fitted into the clerk's recollection of the woman he had seen clinging to the saloon deck stanchion after her interview with the deckhand.

It was while he was waiting for the departure of the first north-bound train that he planned the search for the young woman, arranging the names of the seven might-have-beens in the order of accessibility as indicated by the deckhand.

piece of great good fortune, to take almost immediately. A bit of morning gossip with the obliging clerk of the Winnebago house developed the fact that Doctor Farnham's daughter had once taught in the free kindergarten which was one of the charitable outcroppings of the Wahaska public library. Two blocks east and one south; Broffin walked them promptly, made himself known to the librarian as a visitor interested in kindergarten work, and was cheerfully shown the records. When he turned to the pages signed "Charlotte Farnham" the last doubt vanished and assurance was made sure. The anonymous letter writer was found.

It was just here that Matthew Broffin fell into the limitations of his trade. Though the detective in real life is as little as may be like the Inspector Buckets and the Javerts of fiction, certain characteristics persist. When he found himself face to face with the straightforward expedient, the craft limitations bound him. He thought of a dozen good reasons why he should make haste slowly; and he recognized in none of them the craftsman's slant toward indirection—the tradition of the trade which discounts the straightforward attack and puts a premium upon the methods of the deer-stalker.

Sooner or later, of course, the attack must be made. But only an apprentice, he told himself, would be foolish enough to make it without mapping out all the hazards of the ground over which it must be made. In a word, he must "place" Miss Farnham precisely; make a careful study of the young woman and her environment, to the end that every thread of advantage should be in his hands when he should finally force her to a confession. For by now the assumption that she knew the mysterious bank robber was no longer hypothetical in Broffin's mind; it had grown to the dimensions of a conviction.

With the patient curiosity of his tribe he suffered no detail, however trivial, to escape his jotting down. To familiarize himself with the goings and comings of one young woman, he made the acquaintance of an entire town. He knew Jasper Grierson's ambition, and its fruitage in the practical ownership of Wahaska. He knew that Edward Raymer had borrowed money from Grierson's bank—and was likely to be unable to pay it when his notes fell due. He had heard it whispered that there had once been a love affair between young Raymer and Miss Farnham, and that it had been broken off by Raymer's infatuation for Margery Grierson. Also, last and least important of all the gossiping details, as it seemed at the time, he learned that the bewitching Miss Grierson was a creature of fads; that within the past month or two she had returned from a Florida trip, bringing with her a sick man, a total stranger, who had been picked up on the train, taken to the great house on the lake shore and nursed back to life as Miss Grierson's latest defiance of the conventions.

It should have been a memorable day for Matthew Broffin when he had this sick man pointed out to him as Miss Grierson's companion in the high trap. But Broffin was sufficiently human to see only a very beautiful young woman sitting correctly erect on the slanting driving-seat. To be sure, he saw a man, as one sees a vanishing figure in a kaleidoscope. But there was nothing in the clean-shaven face of the gaunt, and as yet rather haggard, convalescent to evoke the faintest thrill of interest—or of memory.

The Leading Nation. In every age of the world there has been a leading nation, one of a more generous sentiment, whose citizens were willing to stand for the interests of general justice and humanity at the risk of being called by the men of the moment chimerical and fantastic. Which should be that nation but these states?—Emerson.

Dinner Stories

An Atlanta man tells of this conversation between two darky bucks of that town.

"Bill, I hearns dat yo' was courtin' dat Batts gal down my way."

"Sho' I was. An' I was in love with dat gal, too; only I hearns dat she ain't got a cent. So I says to myself: 'Bill, be a man.' An' I was a man, Henry; an' now I passes her by with silent contempt!"

Colonel Culpepper of Virginia was a thoroughly democratic body when mellow, but quite the reverse in his natural state. He was known to foregather with strangers and in their company pass a rousingly happy evening, and said: "Why, colonel, surely you recall that I was out with you all last night." "Well, what of you?" roared the colonel. "Am I obliged to recognize every damned fool who goes on a spree with me?"

"I saw a striking costume today," said the young wife to her dearest friend. "The hat was a mannish sort of an affair of loose-braided straw with a dainty little feather on one side, the jacket was a medium tight-fitting blue, severely plain and braided. But the one thing that interested me most was the sailor effect of the shirt collar. It was so full and free and cool looking."

"Who was she?" inquired the dearest friend. "Who was she?" repeated the young wife. "Why, my dear, I am speaking about one of Dan's club friends."

"HEY-MISTER! GIMME A DRINK, WILL YA?"

SECOND STORY

Some specially acute torment must be reserved for the window dresser of a great city's shops. By caravan and boat and rail, by camel, ibex, mule and horse come the treasures of the world into his cunning hands. Lofts and factories stifle human lives without stint that the window dresser may allure the throng.

It was a particularly charming pair of slippers, and the identical shade of ribbon she desired that caught and held Rita Deane's eyes. Of course, purchase was out of the question. Since earliest remembrance her father had drummed into her pretty head, that personal vanity was the deadliest of sins. And besides—Mrs. Sharpe, Reverend Deane's housekeeper, held tightly to her arm.

Surprisingly, Rita fumbled the money in her purse. Yes, she had enough—just enough. She lifted her eyes to another window on the seventh floor of the great office building across the street, where James White, her fiancé, transacted the affairs of his huge estate. She could see him dimly, pacing up and down in his office, now and then glancing at a letter in his hand.

She had heard something of the contents of that letter from her father before he had dispatched it. In fact he had read it to her, after an exceedingly painful scene. She had rebelled at being obliged to listen to the harsh dictum: "You, a rich backslider in my church, marry my daughter, Rita? Never! How you met her puzzles me, as I have always carefully guarded her."

Yes, the lines of that letter had seared themselves like letters of fire upon her brain.

Again she turned to the window. Some sudden impulse of insurrection frothed within her soul.

"Look! Look!" she cried, excitedly, pointing toward the end of the line of blocked traffic.

Curiosity won. As Mrs. Sharpe's iron fingers relaxed upon their grip, Rita Deane's feet glided swiftly inside the doors of the shop. It was a full five minutes before she returned, innocently assuming an air of injury at the housekeeper's reproaches for her disappearance. The slippers and the ribbon hidden beneath her little jacket more than made up for any punishment that could ever be hers.

Gladly Rita submitted to the clutch of the dragon housekeeper. The more quickly she reached home the sooner would she see the enchanting transformation the finery made in her appearance.

Letter or no letter, dictation or no dictation, she would see James again. Once in her own room she studied her reflection in the mirror, surprised to find that the sins had left no mark upon her pretty face.

Cautiously, a bit fearfully, she loosed the masses of her hair from their tight braids, binding them with the splendid ribbon, reversing in effect its contrast worked in her appearance.

And then the slippers! Carried away with her delight, with this new sensation, this realization of her charms, her feet—those beautifully shod feet—began to perform strange capers, began to steal away her sense of caution. They moved in gay, spirited steps, faster, ever faster, until the dancing girl seemed more like a festive wood-sprite prisoned in this house of gloom. And then—a hand fell upon her shoulder. A firm, iron hand it was; a hand that seemed to grip like five bands of unbreakable steel about the very soul of her.

The hand left her shoulder. She dared not meet the look she knew was upon her father's face.

She felt a little tug at her hair. Then a wild rage seized her as she saw the precious ribbon dangling from her father's hand, held in the finger tips as though the very contact defiled him. She lifted fierce eyes toward his own, hot protest upon her lips, but the habit of a lifelong obedience is not readily downed. His trembling forefinger indicated the slippers while his lips opened and closed without any words coming. He moistened his lips with the tip of his tongue, but still the voice was hoarse with suppressed passion as he commanded her to remove the offending slippers.

Slavishly, yet hating herself for her obedience, she placed them in his hand, averting her eyes to hide the sullen rebellion there.

"I have fought against this trait in you, Rita. I have prayed for victory. I should not have blamed you so harshly. My prayers shall yet win victory for me, victory over the vanity you inherited from your poor, weak mother."

"The same slippers—the same ribbon, Rita! You were just a child then, that day your mother brought a doll dressed as a dancing girl. The doll wore slippers just like these. Just such a ribbon was bound about her hair. And your mother gave them to you, placed them in your innocent hands. You were hugging the doll to your baby breast when I entered the room. The seed was being planted by your foolish, dear mother. I should not blame you so much as myself. I did not discover the horrible blunder in time. I was a few minutes late."

"I took the doll away, took it to my study, Rita. I consigned it to the flames, and burned it to ashes. Your poor mother died shortly after that. It was a judgment upon her, a judgment of which I have meant to tell you. Remember, Rita, God frowns upon adornment and pleasure. Remember and repent, my child, and I shall pray for you when I burn these things."

Burn! Impulsively she reached out as though to save the precious articles. Then she nodded her head meekly, averting her eyes to hide the glint that leaped there. For as her father turned away from her, her sharp ears caught a familiar whistle, the whistle that her sweetheart had used more than once to bring her outside the house.

The door had barely closed behind Reverend Deane than she was at the open window, searching the moon-spun night for the blurry mass that represented White.

Swiftly she detached the note from the weight, devouring it at a glance, obedient to it instantly. "Auto at corner. It's the only way out."

Scenes at Garfield School May Fete Last Friday

Scenes from Hiawatha, a wand drill, the crowning of the May Queen and the Maypole dance were all features of the May Fete given on Friday afternoon at the Garfield school grounds by the fifth and sixth grade pupils of that building, before an audience that numbered over two hundred visitors.

The event was given in place of an Arbor Day program, and is the second affair of its kind given by the Garfield pupils. Elizabeth Lane was May Queen, with Bernice Griffey and Stella Curtis her attendants. The crown bearer was Hazel Krahmer.

Amusements

(Notices furnished by the theatres.)

AT MYERS THEATRE.

The Three of Us.
Mabel Talferro in "The Three of Us," an Alcega release, is coming to the Myers Theatre on June 18. The story is one of the most interesting that B. A. Rolfe Photo Plays, Inc., has put out. "The Three of Us," which is based on the legitimate success story of Rachel Crothers, gets its title from the name of a mine. Rhy MacChesney, the heroine, whose husband is killed by her father, Steve Towney, the hero, takes an interest in it, and the brother of Rhy, completes the "Three of Us." The play is a dramatic and artistic masterpiece, and who in reality is a shrewd business man, attempts to get possession of the mine. This leads to many thrilling clashes between Rhy and her brother, Steve, and between Rhy and her father, Steve. But in the end Rhy saves the day by a long horseback ride, which is shown in many feet of film.

"ENOCH ARDEN."

Poem at the Majestic Tomorrow.

From their earliest years, Enoch Arden and Philip Ray loved pretty Annie Lee. It was not that there were not other boys and girls with whom they might have played, had they been so disposed in the quiet little seaside village in which they lived, but from the beginning all three seemed drawn together by the bonds of a sympathy and understanding far closer than most friendships of more mature years.

Annie, when the three friends reached a suitable age, chose Enoch as her favored companion. His decision was a bitter blow to Philip, but his love for his two friends was equal to the supreme sacrifice and they remained first in his loyal affections, just as he continued to love them.

All the village turned out for the wedding, which was a gala affair, and thereafter Enoch and his bride settled down in the simple manner of life of the little hamlet. And Philip remained the loyal, steadfast friend of both.

Years passed, two children had come to Enoch and Annie, a son and daughter, the eldest of whom was seven, when, upon an ill-omened day, it became necessary for the father to take ship for a long voyage. To Philip, Enoch entrusted his dear ones.

"See that they do not want, while I am gone," he said to his friend as he bade them then. "I shall be with you all again."

The year passed, slowly, as years do, and then another and still others. And Enoch's ship did not come into the harbor, though many another vessel did. Then a strange ship told of seeing wreckage in the far-off Pacific, which must have been what of Enoch's ill-fated craft and all his friends and townfolk mourned him as dead. But for ten years Annie hoped and waited.

Meanwhile Philip, faithful friend of both, had cared for her and the children. He too had hoped and waited. And at last, convinced that Enoch indeed was dead, Annie listened to his pleading and the two were married, making their home with Enoch's children, now almost grown, in the tiny cottage, which he had called home.

Hither came one night, a year or two later, a gaunt, bearded figure, garbed in rough sailor's garments. The wayfarer peered through the cottage window at Annie and Philip with the children, before the warm fire within. It was Enoch Arden, come back after many years.

He watched the scene of peaceful happiness, which meant to him the wreck of all that he had hoped to find after his long absence, but a great light of understanding shone in his heart. He reflected that all the village must long have believed him dead, and Philip, his friend, in fulfilling his trust, had acted as seemed to him best for all.

He did not enter. From an old wife, who recognized him despite the changes and vicissitudes of half a score of years, he learned of Philip's kindness to Annie and the children, and how, believing him dead, they had married after ten years' waiting. In his turn Enoch told the aged woman how he had been cast away on a desert island, where he had led a precarious existence for many years, until picked up by a passing vessel.

Privations and suffering he had endured had weakened him and in the hour of his supreme sacrifice, his emotions wrenched loose the slender hold his soul had on his wasted frame. Thus it was, that at the close of the next day, the found him lying on the sands far down the beach, where, with Philip and Annie, he had been wont to play afoot. He was dead. But on his lips were a smile.

HOUSE UNDER CALL PASSES WATER POWER BILL AS AMENDED

Assemblymen Join in Song Fest Last Night While Waiting for Absent Members—Whittier's Birthday Observed.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., June 17.—The Assembly waterpower bill, as amended by Assemblyman Nordman to restore the salient feature of the Husting law, was concurred in by the assembly last night by a vote of 41 to 38. The vote came at 11:15 p. m., after the house had been under a call for three hours to secure the attendance of several members who were visiting a neighboring village. During the forced interment, the assemblymen held a song fest, Milwaukee German solons leading, and everybody kept in good spirits during the long wait. The call was raised at 11 p. m. Assemblyman Grunewald moved that the bill be non-concurred in. This failed, 39 to 53. Then the vote on concurrence was taken, which resulted as follows: For concurrence, 54; against concurrence, 38.

It was Speaker Whittier's birthday yesterday and the assembly adopted a resolution of confidence and respect, with Chief Clerk Shafter, as master of ceremonies. The speaker responded with an unusually happy speech, acknowledging the rare good feeling with which the assemblymen had gathered to conduct business fairly and expeditiously. A huge bunch of peonies adorned the speaker's desk in recognition of his birthday.

PASS STEPPER BILL LEGALIZING SALOONS

Governor Philipp Is Interested Spectator as Measure Passes at Night Session of Senate.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., June 17.—The hour of eleven o'clock last night practically marked the end of the long legislative fight to pass the Stepper bill, by which the licenses of over 200 Milwaukee saloons which were taken away by a supreme court decision, constraining the Baker law, will be restored, provided the bill is signed. During the debate Governor Philipp listened attentively, having Senator Skogmo's seat next to Senator Bosshard. The vote by which the bill was concurred in, 20 to 11, after being amended by Senator Hanson to keep the saloons open where it is today, was as follows:

For concurrence—Senators Ackley, Albers, Arnold, Barwig, Biecher, Bray, Burke, Cunningham, Eversett, Fair-Hamilton, Jennings, Kuegler, Martin, Mulbringer, Perry, Richards, Rollmann, Stevens, Weissleder—20. Against—Senators Baxter, Bennett, Bosshard, Culbertson, Glenn, Huber, Mon, Potts, Staudenmayer, Tomkins, Whitman—11.

The bill was amended in the following respect, that where on June 30, 1915, there was a greater number of saloons than the number provided by the Baker law, local authorities may issue licenses to qualified persons equal in number to those in excess on June 30, 1915, and such licenses shall be given to the holder of license on June 30, 1915 (referring to those saloons which were knocked out by the supreme court decision.) Under this amendment provision made against increasing the number above the existing limit. A substitute amendment by Senator Burke was voted down.

The bill must now go back to the assembly for action on the Hanson amendment. The debate was enlivened by several sharp exchanges between Senator Bennett, who denounced the bill as a measure to dynamite the Baker law, and Senator Fairchild, who declared its only purpose was to deal fairly and honestly with men who had lost no part of their own lost their holdings. Senator Bosshard spoke at length against the bill. Senator Jennings aided Senator Fairchild in support of the bill.

The Senate voted 25 to 3 to concur in the Hoffman bill repealing appropriations of $200,000 for a men's dormitory at the state university, following a long debate. Senator Burke for the bill and Senator Bosshard against. The three opposing votes on the final roll call were cast by Senators Ackley, Arnold and Monk. Senator Bosshard's amendment, giving $100,000 yearly for two years for the dormitory to relieve the burden was rejected by a vote of 11 to 20. The senate killed the Zinn bill relating to the jury lists.

DROPPING STUDENTS' CASES FROM COURT

Cases Against University Students For Illegal Voting Are Dismissed From Court.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, June 17.—The cases against Russell A. Anderson of Oshkosh and F. G. Pardee of Watertown, University students charged with illegal voting, was dismissed when called for preliminary examination in municipal court.

The cases against C. Schomberg, Milwaukee; Walter C. Isenberger, Baraboo; Edward A. Sipp, Watertown; and C. Gittings, Racine, were to be continued this afternoon. The cases against the other six students may not be taken up until these four have been tried.

RECEIVE WARNING OF ROBBERY AT BARRINGTON

Janesville police made search today for four men who, it was reported, broke into a store at Barrington, Illinois, and stole considerable merchandise. A telephone message telling of the robbery was received by Chief Champion this morning, and at once the policemen were detailed to search the railroad yards. It was said each of the four men took a complete outfit of clothes and that several watches were missing.

Pays Fine: Emma Schultz, the peit girl, who was committed to the Rock county jail, this morning had her fine of $39.15 paid and was released.

DANCING IN PUBLIC SQUARE POPULAR IN PHILADELPHIA

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Philadelphia, June 17.—Followers of Terpsichore will be permitted to dance in the public squares and on the streets of this city during Municipal band concerts this summer. The plan has the full approval of the council. A detailed squad of "Dance Inspectors," under street inspector Theodore S. Finn, will study the steps of the various dances and warn those who dance in too modern a fashion to stop. Pavements and open spaces in the public squares will be roped off wherever they are paved smooth enough to make dancing possible.

PROPOSE GOVERNMENT INSURANCE AGAINST SICKNESS FOR WORKERS

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Washington, June 17.—There are already several million wage-earners in the United States insured in sickness insurance plans and organizations, and sickness insurance is even now recognized almost universally as the most feasible method by which workers can meet the expenses and the loss of wages occasioned by ill health. The great majority of the insured workers, however, are the better paid; the low-paid worker who is least able to meet the cost of sickness and to weather the periods of unemployment that sickness forces upon him, is rarely insured. The development of the existing agencies and organizations into a national state system of sickness insurance similar to those which have been so effective in European countries, is the next step for the United States. These are striking facts brought out in a report on sickness insurance to the federal Commission of Industrial Relations prepared by Surgeon B. S. Warren, of the United States Public Health Service, who was detailed as sanitary advisor to the Commission, and Edgar Sydenstricker, a member of the Commission's staff, according to an announcement by the Bureau of the Public Health Service here.

LOCAL SHIPMENT OF TOBACCO SUNK WITH BRITISH SHIP

Eighty-two Boxes on Ship Inkum, Torpedoed by Submarine off Scotland June 4th.

Eighty-two cases of tobacco, shipped by Sanford Soverhill to London, were among the losses of freight aboard the British ship Inkum, torpedoed by a German submarine on the fourth of June off Lizard Head, near Scotland. There was no warning, according to the reports of the disaster, but the crew of the ship was saved and aided by a Norwegian ship. The ship, however, with its entire freightage was lost and with it went the tobacco shipped by Mr. Soverhill.

The tobacco market is quiet at the present time, as this is the dull season of the year for tobacco dealers. The heavy rains and cold nights have hindered transplanting to such an extent that it will not probably commence in earnest until the latter part of June and the first week in July. However, if the weather remains as it now is, for any length of time the farmers will take advantage of it by getting much of their planting out of the way. Growers whose plant beds are under canvas have not been bothered by the rains and cold snaps, and their plants have a good start. At this time last year there was over half of the tobacco of the state transplanted and the crop was considered an early crop. Early in the season it was predicted that there would be another such crop, but those predictions had not anticipated the weather conditions prevalent of late. Tobacco should be in the field by this time if now is, although the crop often matures when transplanted early in July. All indications point to a very late crop this season.

There will probably be as large a crop and as many acres planted this year as last, in hopes of better prices, this fall than in 1914. O. N. Coon, of the Milwaukee road, has transplanted about eleven acres, and many of the farmers north of here have begun their transplanting, the farms in the latter part seeming to be more adapted to early planting than those south of Janesville. As a rule the northern farmers are the earlier planters.

There is some transplanting taking place on farms in the vicinity of Orfordville. H. S. Edler, formerly of this city, manager of the Hussey Leaf Tobacco company at Chippewa Falls, is trying an experiment that will be watched with great interest in the state. He has prepared a half acre of ground and planted it with corn and tobacco grown wrappers. The field will be covered with 2,000 yards of canvas, costing about $75.

Have Chimney Fire: The fire department answered an alarm from box 261 a few minutes before twelve o'clock today, to the residence of Mrs. Patrick Hengney, 252 St. Mary's avenue, where a chimney fire was threatening to communicate to the roof. The soot blaze was put out with the hand pumps. Enroute to St. Mary's avenue the big motor truck was stuck in deep sand where a sanitary sewer is being laid. After a few moments delay the motor plowed through the rut which was three feet deep.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milton, June 17.—Last evening in the auditorium at Milton college, was given the 34th annual concert by the School of Music. Those who have heard Mrs. Place with the violin and Miss Crandall at the piano need not be told of their taste and skill. Professor Stringer sang and the Milton College Glee club and Treble Clef gave selections separately and together. A number of Janesville people attended the concert. The following is the program:

Treble Clef, the Chimes; Extaste—Spring Trio by Ellen Crandall Place. Alberta Crandall and William C. Daland. Vocal quartets—A Spring Song and a Perfect Day by Alberta Crandall, Leslie J. Bennett, Anna Post, Alfred Whitford. Pianoforte by Albert Crandall. The Old Canoe by the Glee club. Ten Violins, Violoncello and Pianoforte, played Doris. Songs by Leman H. Stringer and in Thoughts by the stringed quartet, consisting of Ruth Bingham, Ellen Place, Alberta Crandall and William Daland. One Spring Morning, Treble Clef; Ave Maria, Violin by Ellen Place and The Miller's Wooing, by a mixed chorus.

Milton College Alumni, with Crandall in the box and Robinson behind the plate, defeated the 1915 college team, nine, four to two, yesterday afternoon. Van Horn and Burdick did the battery work for the collegians. The Alumni "misfits" put up a good game.

Geo. H. Crandall, pitcher for the college team last year, has signed a contract for the summer season with Whitewater. F. C. Dunn has purchased an auto.

DEATH WINS RIGHT OF WAY FOR RAILROAD IN COLORADO FACTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Cripple Creek, Colo., June 17.—Death defeated Robert J. McNamara, 30, and now a great railroad will push its lines through his property after years of delay through McNamara's implacable opposition. On several occasions he drove railroad gangs off with a shotgun. McNamara was one of the oddest characters ever known in these parts. At death he was a trapper, prospector, gambler and hermit. He came here thirty years ago and his experience included successful mine owner, stage robber and convict. For robbing a stage he served ten years of a fourteen year sentence in the Colorado penitentiary. The body of the old man was found in his lonely cabin, death having come from natural causes with the aid of starvation. He had for some time protested the right of way of a railroad near his retreat.
